

ALL SAINTS' PARISH CHURCH, LEIGHTON BUZZARD

Photograph: John Kyle, Leighton Buzzard

The thirteenth-century parish church of All Saints was badly damaged by fire in 1985. The Norman & Beard organ of 1906 was damaged beyond repair, and the chancel organ with its fine case by Bodley was destroyed. The church, with its famous 'angel roof', required full restoration.

The new organ stands on a gallery under the north arch of the central tower. The case carries the arms of St Hugh of Lincoln (who established a prebendary at the church in 1189); the diocese of St. Albans; and the city of Durham. The carvings are the work of Kenneth Lakey of Newburn-on-Tyne.

The organ was cleaned and renovated in 2018.
