
Historic cathedral's organ pipes restored

TECHNICIAN Jim Reeves, from organ specialists Harrison and Harrison in Durham, looks at one of nearly 5,403 pipes removed from York Minster's Grand Organ, which will be repaired or refurbished at their workshop in Durham.

The once-in-a-century refurbishment, will take almost two years to complete, with the restored instrument due to be ready for use in late summer 2020, allowing music to be performed at the cathedral for the next 100 years.
