

Durham, UK

Staff at organ specialists Harrison and Harrison, carry one of the pipes removed from York Minster's grand organ. Around 5,403 pipes will be repaired or refurbished in a process that will take almost two years to complete. Some of the pipes date back to the 1830s and many have remained silent since the last major overhaul in 1903

Photograph: Christopher Thomond/The Guardian

