THE CHAPEL ROYAL HAMPTON COURT PALACE

Christopher Schrider built an organ for the Chapel in 1711, and its splendid case survives today. In the 1840s the organ came into the hands of William Hill; a major reconstruction was carried out by Hill & Son in 1899, retaining much of the original Great and Choir pipework. J.W.Walker made some changes in 1957 and 1972, when electro-pneumatic actions were installed. The organ was considerably altered by Hill Norman & Beard in 1993.

Selective improvements in 2013 included the provision of new electro-pneumatic actions. The organ's musical character had been overlaid by the later changes, and the opportunity was taken to return to the Hill style of 1899.
